THE OPPOSITION wants to stop these programs. We say:

YES! MRS. PRESIDENT, PLEASE CONTINUE USING GOVERNMENT FUNDS TO HELP THE POOR!

PRO-GLORIA

Pro-Gloria and Pro-Gloria are trademarks of the Pro-Gloria Foundation. All rights reserved.

Why?
The opposition wants to stop these programs because they are expensive and they are not effective. They say that the government is wasting money on these programs and that the poor are not getting any benefit from them.

But the Pro-Gloria Foundation says that these programs are very effective and that they are helping the poor. It says that the opposition is just trying to stop the government from helping the poor.

The Pro-Gloria Foundation is a non-profit organization that is dedicated to helping the poor. It has been successful in many of its programs and it is confident that it will continue to be successful in the future.

So, if you are a member of the opposition, please stop trying to stop these programs. They are helping the poor and they are worth the money.

Honasan backs GMA platform

the opposition coalition remains intact.

"Hindi totoo Yun. Kahapon (Sunday) pa humalabas yan mga text messages yan ... Kalokohan lang Yun (That's not true. Those text messages (about his defection) came out and were just foolishness)," Poe said.

Poe said the KNP remained intact despite reports quoting De Venecia that Lakas-CMD would form a government of national unity that would include the actor's ally, Sen. Edgardo Angara, should Ms Macapagal win the presidential election.

"Walang lilipat. Di mangyayari Yun (No one will transfer. That will not happen)," Poe said in Alaminos, Pangasinan.

His personal campaign manager, Sen. Vicente Soto III, said the KNP knew two weeks ago about the covenant of unity against poll cheating signed by Honasan's Guardians and other groups.

Soto said the signing was a good development. "Tali ang kamay nila sa (Their hands are tied when it comes to) election fraud," he told reporters.

The covenant that Honasan signed with De Venecia was for PEACE (peaceful, enlightened, accurate, clean and credible elections).

"This event is precisely designed to lay to rest the dominant feeling now which is fear and mutual suspicion that might lead to projections that there will be post-election violence," he said at the press conference after the signing of the covenant. "We will all be losers if that happens."

Still KNP security chief

Honasan said that he continued to serve as the overall security chief of KNP and head of its Bantay Balota, an anti-poll fraud program. "I don't intend to give up this responsibility," he said.

He said it was his "moral obligation to support all programs for peace and reconciliation" as chair of the Senate committee on peace, unification and reconciliation.

The covenant said: "Lakas-CMD and PGBI shall bind themselves to actively promote efforts to enhance programs and policies for national unity, peace, reconciliation and development to achieve long-term political stability and economic growth for the Filipino people and upliftment of the less fortunate."

Gain for the President

Rufino said Honasan's commitment to support Ms Macapagal's programs was a significant gain for the President because "it leads to more peace and stability."

"We're happy that we have responsible officials who want to promote peace and stability," Rufino said.

De Venecia said the covenant would ensure a peaceful post-election period amid charges from the opposition that the administration was bent on cheating. "The mere fact that we're here has dispelled a lot of tension about the elections," he said.

De Venecia has natural links with Honasan having negotiated during the early 1990s with Honasan and other military rebel leaders of the then Reform the Armed Forces Movement (RAM), who were responsible for a series of bloody coup attempts against the Aquino administration.

The De Venecia initiative led to the 1992 ceasefire with the RAM, the release from prison of right-wing rebels under a general amnesty program, and a final peace agreement.

De Venecia said the Lakas-CMD was supporting the "determined efforts" of the RAM and Guardians to modernize the Armed Forces of the Philippines.

The covenant also sought to discourage PGBI from taking part in coup attempts against the Macapagal administration.

The group greed to "inculcate in our soldiers unfailing loyalty to the Constitution and the flag."

No concessions

Asked what it took to have Honasan sign the covenant, De Venecia said: "No concessions were asked so no concessions were given."

Honasan is facing coup charges before the Department of Justice for his alleged leading role in the Oakwood mutiny in the Makati financial district last year.

Daniel Gutierrez, Honasan's counsel, said the former military rebel leader did not ask for the dropping of the coup d'etat charges against him when he decided to link up with the administration.

"Let them pursue the charges. We can ably defend ourselves legally," Gutierrez said.

The head of the DOJ panel of prosecutors investigating the coup charges against Honasan said they would defer action on the case after the Supreme Court yesterday ordered them to comment on Honasan's petition for the tribunal to cite them for contempt.

"That's the most prudent action we could take pending our comment," said Senior State Prosecutor Leo Dacera.

The DOJ panel earlier ordered Honasan until yesterday to submit his counter-affidavit and evidence against the coup charge that the police filed against him.

If Honasan failed to submit his affidavit, the case was supposed to be set for resolution, raising the possibility that he could be arrested once the case is filed in court.

But Dacera said yesterday the panel would wait until the Supreme Court had ruled with finality on Honasan's petition to transfer the investigation of the case to the Office of the Ombudsman.

On April 13, the tribunal ruled that the DOJ had jurisdiction over the case, but Gutierrez said he would file a motion for reconsideration before the ruling became final and executory on Friday. With a report from Philip C. Tabasa cording to the weather bureau.

Lunar eclipse visible in RP tomorrow

A lunar eclipse takes place when the Earth comes between the sun and the moon, so that the Earth casts its shadow on the moon.

Tomorrow, the full moon will turn either orange or bright red for up to an hour and 16 minutes, when it is totally covered by the Earth's shadow from 3:52 a.m. to 5:08 a.m.

The spectacle is the only one of the four eclipses occurring this year—two lunar and two solar—that can be seen from the country, according to the Philippine Atmospheric, Geophysical and Astronomical Services Administration (Pagasa).

The eclipse actually starts at 1:50 a.m. with the moon entering the Earth's penumbra or lighter shadow. At this point, though, changes in the moon's brightness is still hardly discernible to the naked eye.

The phenomenon only becomes noticeable when the moon starts to breach the darker shade or umbra at 2:48 a.m.

Ideal conditions

The "totality" of the eclipse begins at 3:52 a.m. when the entire face of the moon has crossed into the umbra, and ends at 5:08 when the moon slowly emerges from it back into the penumbra, regaining its normal glow.

"With clear skies this summer, we have the ideal conditions for watching it," said Elmor Escosio, chief of Pagasa's Planetarium.

Night owls might as well join astronomy buffs and stay up for this predawn show because, according to Escosio, similar heavenly displays this year—a solar eclipse on Oct. 14 and another lunar eclipse on Oct. 28—will no longer be visible in the country.

A solar eclipse that occurred on April 19 was also not visible in the Philippines, Escosio said.

The lunar eclipse tomorrow can also be seen in Indonesia, Australia, New Zealand, South America, Europe and Africa and the Pacific and Indian Oceans.

Figure 1 is a line graph showing the percentage of total protein in the supernatant versus the percentage of total protein in the pellet for various proteins. The y-axis is labeled 'Protein' and ranges from 0 to 100. The x-axis is labeled 'Protein' and ranges from 0 to 100. The legend indicates: * = 100% in supernatant, * = 100% in pellet, and * = 50% in supernatant and 50% in pellet. The graph shows that most proteins are 100% in the supernatant, with a few exceptions like BSA and IgG which are 100% in the pellet, and some like PEG and Dextran which are 50% in each fraction.

That the authors may discuss their age and skills has to do with the fact that the authors are not necessarily young and healthy, especially in the case of the female author.

There is a growing body of evidence that the use of the term "gender" is not only confusing but also misleading. The term "gender" is often used to refer to the social roles and expectations that are associated with being male or female. However, the term "gender" is also used to refer to the biological differences between males and females. This can lead to confusion and misunderstanding, especially when the term is used in a social context.
